Mr. JAMES M. MORAN, long known and universally esteemed as an old resident of the Eighth ward, died on Saturday last at Staten Island, where he had been sum- mitted to the bedside of a dearly beloved mother. Ever a kind and thoughtful man, he had obeyed his will, leaving nothing to bequeath from several thousand dollars which we call upon to record the death of one in whom were concentrated so many noble attributes of character, joined with a kindness of heart and refine- ment of manner which made him especially to be sought by all who came within the circle of his acquaintance. Truly we can say he was the type of a true gentleman.
